PROFESSIONAL PRODUCTION CREDITS

Notes on Production Credits:

- In the performing arts production credits are analogous to publications. I have 277 professional production credits scattered over 31 different organizations; 180 with significant design or management responsibilities—60 of those with multiple responsibilities.
- Each credit for scenic design, lighting design, production management, technical direction, props master and stage management reflects 60 to 120 hours of collaborative labor.
- Productions with multiple credits reflect substantial expertise and time commitments.
- I have specialties in five distinct areas reflected among my professional credits: 54 lighting designs; 62 scenic designs; 67 production management; 43 technical direction; 7 props designs; and 9 stage management.

Notes on Production Credits:

- In the performing arts academic production credits are calculated as part of my load. I have 172 academic production credits with 23 different organizations; 120 with significant design or management responsibilities, 99 of those have multiple responsibilities.
- Each credit for design, technical direction or stage management reflects 60 to 120 hours of collaborative, hands-on labor with many students (and faculty and staff where available).
- Productions with multiple credits reflect substantial expertise and time commitments, and given my academic positions at Saint Michael's College and Marquette University, most shows require multiple responsibilities.
- I have specialties in five distinct areas reflected among my academic credits: 95 lighting design; 71 scenic design; 6 sound design; 87 technical direction; and 14 stage management.
- I have directed shows in fall of 2019, spring of 2021 and fall of 2022.
